

ABSTRACT

According to the present invention, the device disclosed is a unified structure which combines various implements useful for automotive applications. Such implements include various lighting devices, a range of power outlets, signal lamps
5 and more. The present invention also includes an independent power supply for such devices as well as the ability to be powered from an outside source, such as a vehicle.